

Slush on lakes strands snowmobilers

Slushy conditions on area lakes, often hidden by a layer of newly-fallen snow, has been blamed for stranding two pairs of snowmobilers Monday night. Both groups were rescued, but not before they became soaked, tired and fearful for their own safety.

Minden dentist John Purc and local welder Dick Hope spent the night in a cabin on Hawk Lake after struggling with their snowmobiles in slush on Clear Lake and walking for close to three miles before reaching shelter.

The other couple, Robert Brown and Marion Perigoe of Oshawa became stranded near a snowmobile trail by Scrabble Mountain in Lutterworth Township Monday evening. Their machines became bogged down in slush on a beaver pond and one of them slipped into the water, before the pair decided to walk to Moore Falls over four and a half miles away.

Purc and Hope had set off about 1:30 Monday afternoon with the intention of riding north on the Petersen Trail and then following trails to Kennisis Lake. They reached their destination, obtained gasoline and started to head back.

As the pair crossed Clear Lake, one in a series of lakes between Kennisis and Hawk Lake, their machines became bogged down in the slush. "It was four o'clock in the afternoon," Purc commented. "We spent about 45 minutes trying to free the machines from the wet snow. In the process Dick got a soaker and we were both sweating a great deal."

They managed to get the snowmobiles to the side of the lake and decided to set off on foot in an attempt to locate shelter. Following the portage back to Big Hawk Lake, they walked along the shoreline until they came to a cottage.

"It was 9 p.m.," Purc notes, and we were exhausted. "The pair forced a window near the door and entered the cottage. "I was fortunate that as we stumbled around in the dark, my hand came in contact with a flashlight," Purc said. With the light they located the stove, started a fire and heated water for tea and soup which they found in the cabin.

"I was frozen," Hope related. "My foot in particular was a solid piece of ice. I can't tell you the joy you feel when a fire starts to warm you up. It was great."

They checked the temperature when they arrived at the cottage and it read 10 below zero Fahrenheit. Though they managed to start the wood stove and connect the propane heater, the temperature in the cabin increased to only 50 degrees.

Meanwhile, back in town, John's wife Judy and Dick's mother had notified the police that the pair had not returned from their day's outing. A search was started immediately under the direction of Corporal Peter Alexander and Constable Bob Pearson. They were assisted by a number of volunteers including Steve Berry, Bill

Council still skeptical of study methods

Anson, Hindon and Minden councillors are still skeptical about the methods used to compile the Tourism Development Strategy released by the provincial government last year. The document has received criticism from the council for what it considers a poor assessment of resources in the Minden area.

Council reviewed a list of Minden area residents interviewed for the study at the January 27 meeting. The list, which was submitted by Laventhol and Horwath, the firm responsible for the study, named eight resort and business operators from the Minden area as well as five government representatives from the Ministries of Natural Resources and Industry and Tourism.

In interviews with resort owners named on the list, The Times has learned that most people contacted by Laventhol and Horwath were unaware of the significance of the study or the use that would be made of the $100,000 win wows Wilsons

Friday morning George Wilson didn't believe it. Monday afternoon he was still in shock.

But, when he looks at his bank balance this week, the five zeros should help dispel the disbelief; he and his wife Mary are $100,000 richer after winning the January 28 draw of Wintario.

Mrs. Wilson heard her winning number announced Thursday night by a Barrie radio station, but it wasn't until Saturday morning that she could convince her husband it was true.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, who reside in Carnarvon, own and operate the Twin Rocks Resort there. They bought the winning ticket on a visit to George Hector's Coffee Shop at Hall's Lake, but George doesn't foresee a life-long holiday just yet; he's got his hands full at the moment as fire chief for Stanhope Township.

The Wilson's, who have one daughter and two grandchildren, haven't made specific plans for the cash. When they spoke to The Times from the Toronto offices of the Ontario Lottery Corporation, they were on their way to the bank. At least their winning trip to Toronto showed them one thing money couldn't buy; a clear highway back to Carnarvon. Weekend weather prolonged the Wilsons' stay to the end of the week.

Provisional status means extra funds for Board

While county council is still considering a move to drop the word "provisional" from the county title, the Haliburton Board of Education is pondering the fate of subsidies it currently receives, because of the provisional status.

According to Doug

Hodgson, director of education for the Haliburton Board, county schools currently receive higher provincial grants than schools in other parts of the province because of the provisional status. Hodgson told The Times that, because of a provision by the Ministry of Education which groups this county with territorial and municipal districts for the purposes of provincial grants, grant allotments to the Haliburton board are given a weighting factor by the provincial government.

Under the government's grant program, boards of education in the province are given a grant in two parts, one which covers "extraordinary" expenditures specific to a particular board, and one which covers normal operating costs. "Extraordinary" expenditures and Paul Prentice, Tom Prentice and other members of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association. The searchers began travelling the HCSA trails in search of the missing men but were hampered by not knowing what direction the two had taken.

It was to be a long night for the families of the missing snowmobilers.

During the night police requested the assistance of the OPP helicopter in the search. It was ordered for Tuesday morning but did not make it to the area due to heavy fog south of here.

Purc and Hope left the cottage Tuesday morning at 8 p.m. Somewhat rested and warmed from their overnight stay and struck off for the south end of Big Hawk Lake. While walking they were spotted by John MacAdam of Big Hawk Landing and Bill MacKay of Carnarvon. The two had been asked to check trails in their area for the missing snowmobilers and were just setting off across Big Hawk Lake when they saw the two walking.

They took Purc and Hope back to their machines where they were able to restart the engines and drive back to Big Hawk Landing. It was then that they called back to Minden and the search for the pair was called off.

Purc and Hope are highly appreciative of the shelter afforded them by the unknown cottager. They hope to be able to contact the owner shortly and repay him for his unknowing, but warming, hospitality.

Dick Hope described the events of Monday and Tuesday as very harrowing and educational. "We set out without letting anyone know where we were going," he commented after his return to Minden. "We didn't have essential emergency supplies such as matches, rope, high energy food and other items." He said the experience had left him wiser, as far as bush travel was concerned, and said he hoped other snowmobilers would also learn from their experience.

"The search mounted by the police cost a great deal of money, not to mention the effort put out by the friends and volunteers who assisted. As well, at home there was the emotional strain of our families," Hope commented. A lot of this would not have been necessary of the people back here had known where we were."

Beaver pond

The comments of Dick Hope on his return are almost identical to the thoughts expressed by Robert Brown and Marion Perigoe of Oshawa after they emerged from the bush late Monday night. "Nobody knew we were out there," Brown commented. "If we hadn't been able to get out on our own, who knows what would have happened?"

The pair had set off from their cottage on the north end of Big Bob Lake following HCSA trails south. Near Scrabble Mountain Brown thought he recognized an old trail leading off to one side that led to a hunting camp. Following the trail, he soon found he was wrong and, in attempting to cross a beaver pond, their snowmobiles became mired in the slush.

"We worked for several hours to free the machines but were unable to do so," Brown commented. "All we got for our efforts was soaking wet from perspiration and slush. As we worked on the pond, the ice suddenly gave way and we found ourselves waist deep in the water."

The pair were able to pull themselves free from the water and decided to abandon the machines, one of which had sunk into the water.

They made their way back to the trail just as the sun was setting and started walking south, knowing that the path led to Moore Falls.

Over four and a half miles later, the couple arrived at the door of Yvonne Pilon in Moore Falls. The temperature was minus six degrees Fahrenheit and they had been walking without gloves or hats, dripping wet from the waist down.

"We were thoroughly exhausted and frozen," Marion commented. "We hadn't eaten since lunch and I felt as if hypothermia (a lowering of the body temperature than can rapidly lead to death) was starting to set in."

Their appearance must have indicated that they were in need of medical attention, for Mrs. Pilon immediately called the police. An ambulance was summoned and luckily one was returning from Lindsay and in a short time they were on their way to Minden Red Cross Hospital.

"When we arrived at the hospital the staff were waiting for us," Perigoe said. "They had warm blankets, hot water bottles, and coffee ready for us when we came through the door. Dr. Lodenquai was on hand. He said we were two very lucky people. He said he couldn't understand how we survived."

"I didn't realize how cold I was until I started warming up," Brown said. He noted that when he arrived at the hospital his boots had to be cut off from his feet.

Following several hours treatment at the hospital the pair were taken by the police to their cottage on Bob Lake.

The two had praise for everyone they met along the way. "Mrs. Pilon was not hesitant in welcoming us in, the ambulance drivers, hospital staff and doctor were most attentive and the police were most helpful," Brown stated.

The machines were pulled from the beaver pond Tuesday and thawed out. The couple plan to go snowmobiling again.

"Only this time we're going to let someone know where we are headed and when we expect to be back," Brown commented, pointing out that he did not want to have to go through another experience like that.

Council questions study

information they provided. Most of the interviews for the study, some of which were conducted nearly two years ago, lasted roughly twenty minutes. One resort owner named on the list does not recall speaking with representatives of the firm at all. All operators contacted by The Times said that the interviews were conducted so long ago that they could not clearly recall their discussions with the consultants, but generally they were asked about what accommodation facilities existed in the area and what was needed to improve tourism in the area.

Council members expressed a suspicion that most of the work done on the area was compiled at Queen's Park, and not through direct contact with residents.

Councillor Ed Pergolas called the study "ill-timed, ill-advised and ill-written" and urged council to request that the Ministry of Industry and Tourism void the study completely because it "doesn't contain one bit of truth". The council moved to submit a letter to the Ministry citing the report as derogatory to development in the Minden area and claiming that sufficient thought and planning was not given the study.

Representatives from Laventhol and Horwath were present at the January 13 meeting of council to respond to similar allegations from councillors. Ministry representative Barry Dobson, also present at the meeting, stressed to council that the study was intended to supply a general strategy for development rather than specific opportunities for developers. He also said, however, that there was little likelihood the government would change the report in any way.

The list submitted by the consulting firm contained two minor errors. One named the owner of Hart Lodge, Mrs. Eileen Crawford, as "Mrs. Hart", while the other referred to Sandy Lane Resort as "Sandy Lake".

The following is a list of the Minden area residents contacted by Laventhol and Horwath for the tourism development study: Eileen Crawford, Hart Lodge; Bob Levesque, Hospitality Inn; Godfrey Saunders, Northern Eagle Tent and Trailer Camp; Mary-Jane Irwin, Rockwood Farm; Bob Jennings, Sandy Lane Resort; Bob Stinson, Haliburton Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Kirk Wipper, Kanawa International Canoe Museum; John Eakins, MPP, Victoria/Haliburton; Tony Pennick, Sun Valley; W. Wilson, MNR; P. Martin, MNR; Wayne Bestwick, Ministry of Industry and Tourism, Huntsville; and D.B. Stamp, Planner, Haliburton.

Frost action is blamed with shifting the pipe feeding the hydrant on the right and breaking the connection which left a portion of the village without water Friday morning. The break occurred during the early hours. To reach the damaged pipes workmen had to dig through five feet of frozen soil. The break was repaired by mid-afternoon and water service restored to all customers.

Hotel owner seeks by-law change

A Minden hotel owner has appealed to municipal council for changes to a by-law that has cost him over $5,000 in court costs during the last two and a half years. Dave Willis, owner of the Rockcliffe Hotel, approached council with recommendations for the changes at the January 27 meeting.

Willis was charged by the municipality in the summer of 1979 under an anti-noise by-law that prohibits excessive noise after 12 midnight. The case was decided in favour of Willis in December of last year, but Willis is afraid that he may be subject to further charges unless the by-law is changed. Willis is objecting that his business, and others in the area which provide live entertainment, are being hampered by the 12 o'clock limit. He has proposed to council that the by-law be either revoked or amended to allow businesses with entertainment to continue until 1 a.m.

There was general agreement among councillors at Wednesday's meeting that some revision of the by-law may be in order. By-law enforcement officer Dick Schell told council that the 12 o'clock restriction was part of the model by-law presented to the municipality by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, and that it was left in the by-law when it was passed in 1978. Willis argued that a later time limit would help the entertainment business in Minden and ensure its value for the tourist industry. The change would also affect the Dominion Hotel and events held at the Recreation Centre and elsewhere in the municipality.

Willis explained some difficulties he has had reducing noise at the hotel. He was ordered by the fire marshal to replace acoustic ceiling tiles at the hotel with drywall, which, Willis says, has increased the noise problems. He also said that keeping hotel doors closed during live music is against fire regulations.

It is not likely that council will move to revoke the by-law altogether, however. Willis agreed with councillors that much of the by-law should stand.

Reeve Lloyd Walker told Willis that council would consider changes to the law and ask him to attend council when a decision has been made.

Time change

Willis also proposed adopting a system used last year at Wasaga Beach. The community operated on standard time during the peak summer months. This allowed the businesses to cater to tourist crowds by continuing entertainment until two o'clock, daylight saving time.

Since the change to daylight saving time is controlled by local councils, the Village of Minden could remain on standard time during the summer if the council so decreed under the proposal suggested by Willis. Members of council offered no comment on the idea.

Grants could be lost

includes such costs as debt charges against school buildings and transportation costs. Because of the weighting factor given to Haliburton county, the Board of Education's transportation costs are recognized as higher than those in other counties and weighted 15% as a result.

The operating component of the grant covers goods and services necessary for the daily operation of a school. The provincial government allots a maximum of $1,730 per pupil for elementary schools, but the per pupil allotment is weighted an additional 6% because of the higher costs of goods and services in the Haliburton area.

According to Keith Fletcher of the Ministry of Education, however, it is not certain that dropping the provisional status would end the weighting factors altogether. He said that Haliburton was originally given weighting factors in its grant structure because its operating costs, like those of northern boards, were higher. Fletcher suggested that if the provisional status is dropped, the provincial Ministry of Education would reassess Haliburton's needs to determine whether the weighting should be continued.

Because the weighting factors determine only the amount of the board's costs that are eligible for grant subsidy, and not the amount of the grant itself, it is not clear how much the county may stand to lose from its budget if the weighting factors are discontinued.

A call for help

An important, but often unrecognized, tourist attraction in Haliburton County is in need of help. Kirk Wipper, founder of the Kawana International Canoe Museum at Ox Narrows has sent out an appeal for assistance. Will it be heard?

Speaking at a recent meeting of the Minden Rotary Club, Wipper vowed the museum will not be moved out of the county. At the same time, however, he told the gathering that a more suitable location should be found for a portion of canoe, and kayak collection so that more people will have access to the most extensive boat collection of its kind in the world.

Wipper envisions a satellite museum, located in a high traffic area, that would become a major attraction for tourists and residents alike. He indicated that there are pressures on him to move the collection out of the county, but fortunately he has expressed a desire to see it remain here.

The pressures to move are strong and in the end could win out if the county does not rally to the museum's defense. Minden would be an ideal location for the satellite museum, especially because of the proximity to the new Wild Water Preserve which already attracts a large number of canoe enthusiasts. The municipality could lose an impressive attraction if it does not take an interest in the museum now.

While its founder has said the collection will not leave the county, we will all lose if he is not encouraged to make it more accessible than it is now. The municipality has an excellent opportunity to provide assistance to this most impressive collection and obtain an important tourist attraction as well. We hope they won't ignore this opportunity.

Learning the hard way

Two dramatic incidents recorded on the front page of today's edition graphically illustrate the dangers which can befall an unprepared snowmobiler. Indeed, anyone who ventures far from civilization in the winter could find himself in the same life-threatening situation.

However, if he has left word of his itinerary with someone, and had the foresight to carry the necessary emergency supplies, he will have a better chance of surviving and being found quickly.

The four people who tasted winter's unforgiving nature this week learned their lesson the hard way. They have expressed the hope that their experience will convince others of the need for due caution when venturing beyond the built-up area of our county. The weeks ahead will tell if the message got through.

Letters

Editor:

In regard to a letter that appeared in your edition of January 27, from Opal Crowe, concerning a recent hockey game in Minden on Friday, January 22.

I refereed a Juvenile game in Minden that particular evening and I thought she may have been questioning my judgement, but, as I read along I realized that she in fact saw a different game than the one I participated in. Some details have been altered by her that would leave one to believe it was in fact the same game.

In the third paragraph of her letter she states that if a referee is on the side of one team the game gets out of hand.

I, for one, agree that if a team is outclassed on the ice the other team will show frustration by illegal tactics and in fact last Friday's game that I refereed indicates just that from a quick review of the game sheet.

In the next paragraph, she indicates that the goalie was hit under the chin with a stick. I can not comment as I never saw that happen, but it may well have been the case. Ironically the goaltender is Opal Crowe's son. If it was the same game, I apologise I missed that call, if in fact it was in my game. Incidentally I missed one other or shall I say inappropriate call to Minden's No. 14. I assessed a minor penalty for charging when I should have given him a match penalty for deliberate attempt to injure. Often the visiting team players had to leave the game. My assessment was based on judgement which is what all referees are equipped with. Unfortunately, hockey parents and fans could use a little insight into judgement.

The most blatant piece of penmanship came from this writer in her next paragraph, when she indicated that a Minden player was hit over the head while in the penalty box. To this I say, Mrs. Crowe, now I know that your eyesight is certainly not 20-20 vision. I was no more than 10 feet from either participant on this occasion, but if he had hit your player as you indicated then I certainly would have been hit. The fact of this matter is that the visiting player raised his stick above his head, but made no forward motion with the stick, therefore he could not have hit this player, or myself, for that matter. Don't take it from me, ask Mr. Ingram or Dave Hartwick, they were the timers.

In regard to your last paragraph, "clean up minor hockey", I could no more agree, but the problem is more than poor refereeing. It is the age old instinct to win - at any cost and I see it at every hockey game. The coaches yelling one thing - the parents yelling another - the player

by Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Inclement weather may not be everyone's favourite companion at this time of year, but occasionally it can be counted as an ally of conservationists. Such was the case this past summer, when bad weather was officially listed as the reason for the failure of a controversial plan to trap gyrfalcons in the Canadian arctic.

Gyrfalcons are the largest of the Canadian falcons, birds of prey renowned for their speed and agility. Gyrfalcons are thinly scattered across the arctic - rare, but apparently holding their own on their remote nesting sites. Their diet is mostly birds, especially the arctic ptarmigan and grouse, and their bullet-like dives to scoop small birds from the air are one of nature's most impressive aerial displays.

The name gyrfalcon means "sacred falcon", in reference to its esteem by ancient falconers, who trained captured birds for the hunt. But in the eyes of the Northwest Territories government, it also means money. Gyrfalcons are worth up to $30,000 each, which has already prompted a vigorous illegal trade in the birds. Last summer, the Territorial government approved the legal capture of up to 50 birds by the Kitikmeat Inuit Association, for sale to Middle East falconers. For each bird sold, the Territory would impose a tax of $5,000.

Luckily, the scheme failed because of poor weather, but it is likely to continue in coming years. Unfortunately, no studies have been started on sustainable population levels, or the effects of harvesting on the future of these birds. All we know now is that the birds are rare, that they likely are vulnerable, and that their smaller cousin, the peregrine falcon, is already endangered. Surely, before we begin in the commercial harvest of yet another species of wildlife, we should be seeking to ensure that we don't place another of our birds of prey in jeopardy.

Trappers exchange tips and techniques

There are more ways than one to skin a cat. Or a beaver. Or a marten. Or a raccoon. And so when trapper get together, there's a lot to be discussed.

While most people were still in bed, Minden trappers were gathering January 24th at the Minden recreation centre to trade ideas and techniques at the annual meeting of the Minden and District Trapper's Council.

Bob Wood, president of the Council for this season, says the motivating idea behind the group is education. The meeting featured a film and discussion of diseases that affect fur-bearing animals in the district. Trappers from all over Southern Ontario gave demonstrations of techniques that ensure the highest quality pelts, which in turn ensures a healthy fur market for coming years. And of course there were a lot of stories told of life on the trap line. Wood says the council, now in its second year, has 48 paid members for this year and he expects more.

A lot of refinement and technique goes into producing the perfect pelt, and every trapper has his own method. Hundreds of hazards threaten at every step: grease under the fur, fleshing too closely or stretching too tightly can all reduce the final value of a pelt when it comes time to sell it. Trappers aim to make the most for their time in the bush and at the skinning table, and they see good technique as a means of protecting the industry as well. Thus every trapper becomes a master of technique in his own right.

One such master is undoubtedly Wayne Huber of Lambeth. Many of Huber's methods have been handed down from his father, and his tools are a collection of time-tested relics and modern designs of his own. But no matter how many ingenious tools grace a trapper's box, there's always a sharpened bone on hand for fleshing; nothing seems to have replaced it.

Not only is Huber meticulous in the way he handles the raccoon pelt, but he does it all with stunning speed. He can produce a pelt ready for drying in five minutes and thirteen seconds, and when he's really busy, he averages five animals every hour.

Huber begins by hanging the lifeless animal from the ceiling by a hind foot. It looks like an unlikely start, but you can't argue with the results it yields. He then makes an incision at the ankle and the hide comes off, after some considerable yanking, like a stubborn boot. Next he drapes the hide over a fleshing board and scrapes down the skin to remove the extra flesh, turning the hide as he goes and working from head to tail. Finally the pelt is stretched over a hand-carved form, much like an ironing board, which is selected according to the size of the animal, and pegged out to dry for several days. Huber, who is also a director of the Ontario Trapper's Association, gives the impression of a trapper who approaches skinning like an art. He won't say exactly how many raccoon he takes in a season — it seems reticence on this count is common to most trappers — but he guarantees his harvest is top notch.

Alex Bowers is another trapper of meticulous technique. Although he doesn't live in a cabin in the woods, he has been trapping for nearly thirty years and his harvests show it; he has won the Ministry of Natural Resources award for the highest quality bundle twice, one of only two trappers in the county to do so.

There is no prouder spokesman for the trapping industry in Haliburton country than Bowers.

Alex Bower makes the initial incision in a beaver....

....and puts the finishing touches to the pelt.

He says, in all earnest, that Haliburton county beaver is simply the best in North America — better even than that of the Quebec Preserve, which is a standard of excellence in the industry throughout the world. Bowers' pelts have sold all over Europe and he receives Christmas cards regularly from buyers all over the continent.

Besides his attention to detail, Bowers claims only one factor has brought him such success at his trade; his wife. "To be a successful trapper you must have a successful wife", he says. Edna Bowers does at least half the work on every pelt her husband brings in. With eighty square miles of licenced zone to trap, both Alex and Edna are busy from the time the first traps are set below the ice in December to the end of the season in mid-April.

While personal pride spurs Bowers' attention to technique, there is a concern for protecting the animal population as well — which only makes sense, since trapping is a full time occupation for Bowers when he's not fulfilling his duties as a councillor on Monmouth council.

Bowers is a great proponent of the Conibear trap, which, unlike the leg-hold trap that has drawn so much protest from humanitarians, kills its quarry instantly. The Conibear is used by most of the trappers in the Minden district. Bowers works his beaver colonies on a three year rotation. Each season he harvests only one third of the active houses in his zone, a practice which ensures the population will remain strong from year to year.

Although controlled harvesting is in a trapper's own interests, the final responsibility for protecting the fur-bearing population rests with the Ministry of Natural Resources. Eric Mitchell, a conservation officer with the department's Minden office, keeps a careful tab on animals harvested in the 1,800 square miles of the Minden district. His office is responsible for setting quotas to protect species whose numbers are declining in the area, a job which entails aerial surveys of beaver colonies and constant checks on male/female ratios among the harvests of threatened species.

Beaver, fisher and marten have been protected by quotas for the past six years now; last year 190 fisher and 100 marten were taken in the district. This season's beaver harvest will total roughly 6,500, while 40,000 will be taken province-wide. The muskrat will undoubtedly provide the most bountiful yield; ten to eleven thousand will be trapped this season in the Minden district alone.

The Minden Trappers' Council adds one tool to the trapper's outfit that they can't make by themselves — information. Whether it's information from the government or passed from one trapper to another, it all goes towards improving the trade and protecting the market, and for 300 trappers who make a living on trap lines in the Minden district each winter, that's a valuable service.

Wayne Huber combines finesse with speed: here he does some close work around the ears of a raccoon pelt.

Haliburton Highlands
The heart of the north

Last Tuesday (January 26th) the Chamber invited all of the members out to the Haliburton Legion to see the new SkySlider Balloon launched and to hear of a joint promotional effort that had been suggested and could take place if sufficient funds could be raised for it.

Certainly within the writer's seven years with the Chamber, this meeting was one of the high points. Just over 70 members attended and during the entire evening not one negative comment emerged. During the hard economic times our country is going through I doubt if there are too many occasions lately where businessmen are getting together and that happens. This is not to say that any of those in attendance are experiencing business difficulties — far from it. Many of those pledging support to this project certainly did so under some duress, but they believed in the program, believed it would be good for the community and they backed it with their hard earned dollars.

It has long been a concern with the Chamber that we cannot show retailers and service industry members the same direct results from our potential activities as we can for the resort industry. The resorts can always pinpoint a certain number of their clients as having been acquired through their membership or advertising with the Chamber where other sectors do not as a rule have people walking through their door indicating that the Chamber sent them. They all do benefit however, and the business people represented at this function on Tuesday fortunately saw that they do. Pledges from the retail and service sector were quite substantial and this was one of the most encouraging factors displayed and it contributed greatly to the obvious success of the evening.

At least one member suggested some time ago that instead of the Chamber selling confused by coaches and fans. Nothing would be easier than for me not to have to call a penalty, but as long as there is no respect from fans, parents and coaches you will not have clean hockey.

In closing, Mrs. Crowe, let me state your team was beaten by a better hockey club, not poor refereeing. In consolation, I might add you son played well in this game and was probably one of the few Minden players that came to play the game fairly and squarely by the rules.

Bill Davis,

advertising to raise money towards promotional endeavors why not just ask each member to contribute towards a worthwhile program which would not have to be cluttered up with a lot of individual ads. We have never been convinced that the membership would be willing to support anything that didn't have their name on it. It looks like we were wrong.

Any member who pledges financial support for this campaign may have their brochures distributed at the 16 malls that will be visited, but most of those who immediately backed the program do not have any brochures to distribute. They have then, done just what we felt they may not do, contribute to a very worthwhile promotion that they know will bring people into the community. Once they are here their presence will generate business either directly or indirectly for everyone.

Pledges at the meeting reached over $4,200.00 and by the weekend another $1,000.00 had been added by other members who were not in attendance. Some of the municipalities are expected to add to that again once they have discussed it at a meeting and the $8,000.00 goal is certainly within reach. If a commitment can be made this week we will be flying "Haliburton Highlands — Yours to Discover" over a metro shopping mall by the end of February.

Pledges will be gratefully accepted over the phone at the Chamber office. Just call us at 286-1760 and help us narrow the gap. A huge thanks to all who have already done so.

Bruce and Marion retire
After over 30 years operating Halimar Resort on Lake Kashagawigamog Bruce and Marion Henry are retiring. Bruce officially announced this at the above described meeting last Tuesday in Haliburton. He stated that Halimar had been sold to Guy and Wendy Ramsay who have been customers at the resort for some 25 years and that he and Marion are currently building their retirement home on property adjacent to Halimar.

Bruce is a founding member of both the Chamber and the Lake Kashagawigamog Tourist Association and as well as devoting many years of dedication to those organizations also served on the board and is a past-president of Resorts Ontario. Marion has earned a reputation as one of the Highlands most generous hosts at their resort. The industry has lost one of its most colourful members, but we somehow doubt that Bruce will be satisfied to sink quietly into the background. We look forward to hearing from him from time to time.

Balloon promotion
raises over $5000

The Chamber of Commerce has raised over $5,300 to support a promotional scheme that may see the name of Haliburton Highlands floating above Toronto shopping malls on a giant balloon for 16 days this spring.

Haliburton Village entrepreneur Steve Bowskill, operator of the Sky Slider ride and owner of the balloon, has offered one side of the balloon to the Chamber to fly a 16 by 20 foot banner promoting the Highlands. The balloon was aloft at a meeting held last Tuesday night (January 26) at the Haliburton Legion and the 70 people who attended were impressed enough to offer pledges totalling more than $5,300 to get the project under way.

Bowskill has offered to fly the banner, which will read "Haliburton Highlands, Yours to Discover," at a cost of $500 per day to the Chamber. He told Chamber representatives that the amount is one half the cost of renting a similar balloon privately. The Chamber is now trying to raise the $8,000 from Haliburton county residents and businesses to finance the 16 day Toronto tour, which will have the balloon flying above Toronto malls on 16 successive Saturdays. Literature promoting the Highlands will also be available inside the malls.

Bowskill purchased the balloon, one of the largest in Canada, last year to promote the Sky Slider. The balloon will be flown in Haliburton this summer. Bowskill will also fly the Sky Slider logo

Council hesitant
to support balloon

While private donations continue to come in, the Chamber of Commerce is approaching municipal councils in the county for contributions to the hot air balloon they hope to use as promotion for the Highlands.

Chamber spokesmen Bob Stinson and Godfrey Saunders explained details of the plan to Anson, Hindon and Minden council at their meeting Wednesday night. Stinson told council that he expects to raise $1,000 in pledges over the phone in addition to the $5,300 received through the January 26 promotional rally held at the Haliburton Legion.

Stinson told council that the Chamber hopes to take advantage of the $70,000 that the owner of the balloon, Steve Bowskill, plans to spend on promoting his Sky Slider ride in 1982 by buying into the balloon scheme. He also explained that if county businesses were to spend 2% of all revenues from tourism each year on promoting the county, Haliburton would have a yearly advertising budget of $80,000. "We're certainly not spending that much now," he said.

Councillors at Wednesday's meeting were hesitant to offer immediate support for the project, however. Some councillors objected to the $8,000 being charged for use of the balloon as being too much, since one side of the balloon will be taken up by a banner promoting Bowskill's Sky Slider ride.

In response to a question from council about the possibility of raising more than $8,000, Stinson said that the Chamber would keep any amount they raise over the $8,000 mark.

along with the Haliburton Highlands banner during the Toronto tour.

Business operators attending the Tuesday night meeting represented one-man businesses, resorts and retail operations. Although the Chamber of Commerce is still almost $3,000 short of their target, Manager Bob Stinson is expecting contributions from municipal councils to make up the balance. Most municipal councils, he says, will be watching Dysart et al for its contribution.

Blaze destroys Maple Lake home

A woodstove is suspected of having started a fire which destroyed the home of a Maple Lake couple Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Pat Wilson, owners of the house, were away at the time of the blaze.

Stanhope fire chief George Wilson said that the house, situated on the south side of Maple Lake near highway 530, was burned nearly to the ground when Stanhope firemen arrived at the scene. The fire was reported at 1 p.m. by a Toronto man who was in the area snowmobiling at the time.

Because the house was destroyed, the cause of the fire was difficult to determine, but chief Wilson believes it could have started in a dirty stove pipe connected to the stove. Estimates of the damage have not been made.

The smouldering ruins of the Wilson home can be seen in the photograph to the right.

Attack planned on deficit

Municipal council is taking steps to reduce deficits resulting from the operation of water and sewer systems in the municipality.

Councillor Ed Pergolas, who is currently in charge of the water and sewer accounts for the municipality, introduced a proposal to council at the January 27 meeting which would eliminate a deficit of more than $40,000, currently facing the water system, over a 5-year period.

Pergolas blamed past councils for improper management of the account and for letting water and sewage rates fall behind operating and maintenance costs. The $40,300 deficit, which Pergolas claims has been accumulating since 1977, was partially offset by a raise in domestic water rates in the last two years. The council, following a recommendation from Pergolas, raised the $84.60 charged for domestic service last year to $85.00. He claims the nominal increase was made for accounting purposes, and will save tax payers hundreds of hours in accounting costs. There will be a similar raise in commercial rates as well.

The municipal water system now has an annual gross profit of $12,000, which comes from charges to people using the system. Pergolas told council that the $12,000 figure is subject to change once supplementary charges are received from the Ministry of Environment (MOE) in April. Pergolas proposed that council set aside $8,000 each year from the gross profit to reduce the deficit, and hold the balance of yearly profits in a contingency reserve fund, in order to provide against emergency repairs and maintenance while drawing interest on the money.

Unlike the water rates, the cost of sewage treatment is set by the MOE each year, since they own and operate the system. The MOE has introduced a step rate for 1981, 1982 and 1983. The 1983 figures, based on the gallonage used by the municipality in 1981, will increase a total of $8,000 over two years. The municipality will be charged $2.30 for every 1000 gallons processed in 1983.

Although the sewage deficit of $9,000 at the end of 1981 is small compared to the water deficit, Pergolas told council that it has accumulated because of lack of attention to increased costs on the part of past councils. The average domestic sewage rate charged last year was $96.00, though some users paid as little as $64.00. Pergolas blames the discrepancy on the fact that, up until this year, sewage rates have been set at 218% of what the water rates were at the time the sewage service was installed. Those who began sewage service when water rates were low have continued paying these low rates despite subsequent increases in water rates. Council has set 1982 rates at $100.00, which means that approximately 96% of rate payers using the system face an increase of $4.

Pergolas explained to council that proposed moves are meant to bring water and sewage rates up to date with current operating costs. According to Pergolas, past councils have adjusted rates according to the auditor's figures received at the end of each year. This has meant that they have worked one year behind changes in costs.

In addition, because the provincial government's budget is effective April to April, the municipal budget, which runs from January to December, can be affected by changes that occur when the provincial budget is introduced.

Municipal council intends to form a committee to handle the water and the sewer accounts in the future.

Minden backs official plan

A county-wide official plan received a boost this past week following a decision by Anson, Hindon and Minden council at the January 27 meeting to support the move. The official plan, if adopted, will be based on the county development strategy, a document prepared in 1980 which provides recommendations for development in the county.

The council's decision comes in response to a letter received from the county council, outlining three options in regard to the development strategy and asking municipal councils to support one of the three. The letter was sent to all municipal councils in the county.

Minden council elected to move directly to an official plan, by-passing an intermediate step which would call for a full scale appraisal of the strategy before it is made an official plan, and a third option which would have municipal councils follow recommendations made in the development strategy in its existing form.

The development strategy currently in use is a guide to municipal councils, developers and the public rather than an expression of explicit policy. It has no legal status with the provincial government. Adopting the strategy as an official plan would give the document legal status — once it is approved by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs — and it could then be presented in hearings before the Ontario Municipal Board as a legal expression of development intentions for the county.

At a meeting of county council on February 18, 1981, councillors expressed concern that the development strategy was not being followed by individual municipal councils. Changes to any official plan adopted by the county would require public scrutiny before being approved.

There is still some question as to the exact cost of transforming the development strategy into an official plan. County council is still debating whether or not the plan will necessitate hiring a planner and a draftsman to carry it out, and if so, what the cost will be. Dysart et al will not be required to contribute, because they have an official plan and a full time planner of their own. In any event the province will most likely absorb at least half the costs, and the remainder will be divided amongst the remaining municipalities in the county.

Board - CUPE sign contract

The Haliburton Board of Education has reached a settlement with members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) that will give CUPE workers a 13% raise over two years. The settlement, which affects 27 full and part time workers in the county, was reached in one night of negotiations between the Board of Education negotiating committee and representatives of CUPE at a meeting of the Board of Education on January 25.

CUPE workers were seeking a one-year contract from the Board, but finally settled on the two-year pact which, in addition to the 13% wage increase, will increase accumulated sick leave from one and three quarter days per month to two. This gives CUPE workers parity with regard to sick leave with teachers employed by the Board. CUPE employees will also be eligible for five weeks paid holiday after twenty years service.

According to Len Salvatore, chairman of the Board's negotiating committee, the agreement will mean that school caretakers who belong to CUPE will earn better wages than non-union caretakers. There are currently nineteen full and part time CUPE caretakers employed by the board and eight secretaries.

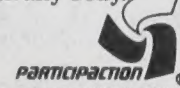

Car one where are you?

If you were looking in vain for Car 1 of the Minden OPP in the carnival parade on the weekend, it wasn't your eyes that were to blame; the 1941 Chevrolet never made it.

Sergeant Bill Bailey and his wife Joanne were intending to drive the antique cruiser, shipped up from Toronto for the occasion, in Saturday's parade but they didn't get further than the garage in which it was parked. The overnight snowfall made driving so treacherous that Sergeant Bailey decided the vehicle was better left in the garage until conditions improved.

PUCK TALK

Pee Wees

The Minden Pee Wees travelled to Bobcaygeon January 26 to face their counterparts from that community. The locals were shut-out by the competition, losing by a 15-0 margin.

In a second game this past week they played to a 4-4 tie when they met Haliburton. Drew Mitchell scored the opening goal of the game in the first period putting Haliburton in the lead. His effort was unassisted. John Wells put Minden on the scoreboard early in the second period potting his first of three goals. Gord Wood and David Preston collected the assists.

Haliburton then scored three quick goals to take a commanding lead. Once again it was Drew Mitchell, unassisted, then a pair from Erin Nicholls, one with the help of Jaro Cooper and the other unassisted.

Scott Russell and John Wells each scored for Minden before the period closed. Tom MacLeod assisted with the Russell goal while the Wells' power play effort came with the help of Gord Wood.

John Wells pulled the game out of the fire for Minden in the final frame, scoring at the 4:30 mark. David Preston picked up the assist on the game tying effort.

Travelling south again later in the week, the Pee Wees once again ran into trouble, this time when they faced Fenelon Falls. The final score was 13-1 with Tom MacLeod picking up the only Minden marker. Assists were credited to Scott Russell and David Preston.

Bantam

Minden and Bobcaygeon Bantams battled to a 3-3 tie January 26 in Bobcaygeon. Greg Newell picked up two goals for the Monarchs while Glenn Hall was credited with the third. Assisting on the Newell goals were Jeff Howe on the first and Paul Walker on the second. Mike Gorveatt and Paul Walker assisted on the Hall goal.

Thursday in Minden the Bantams were defeated by Fenelon Falls by an 8-4 score. Greg Newell scored two goals for the Bantams while Glenn Hall and Gord Wood added the other markers. Assists went to Jeff Howe with two, Greg Newell and Gord Wood. The Wood goal was unassisted.

Midget

The Minden Midgets strutted their stuff on Saturday in Lindsay as they defeated their hosts by 9-3. Scot Hamilton led the way for Minden scoring three goals and assisting on two others.

Greg Newell and Rob MacLeod each added a pair and one assist, while singles went to John Dillon and Tim Wood, his unassisted. Others picking up assists included Doug Schell, Jeff Stamp and Harold Cowen.

Huskies please Minden crowd with 7 - 5 win over Huntsville

The Haliburton Huskies came away from the weekend with a win and a loss going down 8 - 5 to the Indians in Gravenhurst on Friday and coming back with a strong game Sunday against Huntsville to win 7 - 5 before a big crowd at the Minden arena.

Dave Nicholls and Gary Harrison both had two goals against Gravenhurst Friday night, but consistent pressure from the Indians kept the Huskies out of range for much of the game. Nicholls had the first goal for the Huskies on assists from Chris Hodgson and Ron Yake. Yake then put away Haliburton's second goal with Nicholls assisting, but the Huskies were still down two at the end of the first period after Gravenhurst netted four.

Harrison's first of the night came on a second period power play, when he beat the Indians' goalie on an unassisted shot. Gravenhurst responded with a goal to preserve their two goal lead, however, and the period ended with the Indians up 5 - 3.

Harrison bagged number two in the third period on passes from Corey Walker and Shaun Chapman. Nicholls' second tally came on an assist from Hodgson, but Gravenhurst was consistent, outscoring the Huskies 3 - 2 in the final period to take the game 8 - 5.

The Huskies turned in a powerful performance against Huntsville on Sunday in a fast and rugged game on Minden ice. A big carnival crowd was on hand to cheer on the Huskies, and Huntsville put on an equally good show, coming back to tie the game three times before Scott Arbuthnot finally put it out of reach with an empty net goal in the final fourteen seconds of the third period.

Haliburton finished the first period up 2 - 1 on goals from Kevin Shapiera and Dave Nicholls. Shapiera had the first mark for the Huskies on an assist from Corey Walker. Nicholls, who had another two-goal night for the Huskies, got his first late in the opening period with the Huskies short-handed.

Tim Davies opened second period scoring for the Huskies when he connected from Nicholls and Ron Yake. Huntsville came back to even the score 3 - 3, but Nicholls' second goal put Haliburton up 4 - 3. Scott Arbuthnot and Yake got the assists. The two teams then went end to end with some rough work along the boards until Huntsville popped one in to tie it 4 - 4 with seven minutes left in the period. Nicholls was sent to the box for roughing with less than five minutes in the period and teammate Rob Abbs followed seven seconds later on a tripping call, but the Huskies killed off both penalties to preserve the tie.

The big break came for the Huskies with only 22 seconds to play in the second. Ron Yake, who became the first Huskie in history to score over a hundred points in a season last week, slammed one in from inside the blue line to put the Huskies up 5 - 4 at the end of the period.

Seemingly never outdone, Huntsville opened the third period scoring to tie the game 5 - 5. Tim Davies' second of the afternoon half way through the period put Haliburton ahead again, this time to stay. Davies picked up on passes from Yake and Ed Davis to pop a high wrist shot into the corner from ten feet out.

Huntsville put Haliburton under pressure for the rest of the game, controlling the puck in the Haliburton end through tight passing and stick work, but Haliburton hung on with some defensive hustle and forced Huntsville to pull their goalie for a last effort with under a minute to go. Haliburton managed to fend off the six attackers and finally crossed the Huntsville blue line but couldn't get a shot on the empty net. With fourteen seconds left Scott Arbuthnot corralled the puck along the boards when Huntsville tried to bring it out and rapped a shot in from the Huntsville blue line to clinch it for Haliburton.

The Huskies travel to Midland this Friday for an 8:30 p.m. game against the Centennials. Sunday afternoon, the Bracebridge Bears are in Haliburton. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Novice eliminated in semi-final

Minden managed to make it to the championship semi-finals Saturday during the Novice tournament, but were unable to defeat their competition from Peterborough and were eliminated from further play.

The one day tournament was just one of the many activities taking place in and around the arena during the winter carnival weekend.

The Minden squad opened the event on a winning note defeating Fenelon Falls 5 - 2. However, when they met All Saints of Peterborough in the semi-finals, they went down to a 4-2 defeat.

Robie Ackerblade scored three goals for Minden in the first game. Assists went to Kevin Buchanan, Jarrett Gentle and Mike Muli. The other Minden markers came off the sticks of Jay Hughes from Aaron Hie and Randy Bull unassisted.

Robie Ackerblade and Jay Hughes shared the scoring in the second game with Randy Bull assisting on the Ackerblade tally.

The tournament championship was claimed by the entry from Bracebridge. They received the Kinsmen championship trophy and gold medallions for their efforts. Runners-up in the 7-1 final, All Saints of Peterborough, were presented with the Eric Coulter memorial trophy and silver medallions.

The consolation championship went to Oakwood, who scored a 2-1 victory over Fenelon Falls. They received the Prentice Roads trophy while the runners-up were presented with the Porter award trophy.

The following is a breakdown of the scoring during the tournament: opening round: Minden 5 - Fenelon Falls 2; Beaverton 1 - All Saints 1 (All Saints declared the winner, having scored the first goal). Bracebridge 2 - Oakwood 0; Bowmanville 14 - South River 1.

Championship: semi-finals: All Saints 4 - Minden 2; Bracebridge 3 - Bowmanville 2; Final: Bracebridge 7 - All Saints 1.

Consolation: semi-finals: Fenelon Falls 2 - Beaverton 1; Oakwood 9 - South River 2; Final: Oakwood 2 - Fenelon 1.

Members of the Minden Novice team close in on the goalie for the Peterborough All Saints squad during a semi-final game Saturday afternoon. The visitors defeated Minden 4-2 to eliminate the local team from further play. The action was part of a tournament played Saturday at the Minden arena in conjunction with the winter carnival.

Well, it is Monday morning, January 25, and it is twenty below zero, here at Hyland Crest. We are surely having real weather, but we are nice and warm here.

Sunday night service in the chapel with Rev. Burgess taking the service, and Mr. Harold Thompson reading the lesson from the twenty-third chapter of Luke, and offering prayer - a very nice service. Mrs. Thompson played and sang, which really helps.

Monday morning was fun and fitness, with two interesting movies on Monday night.

Rev. Trevor Denny, from Haliburton Anglican church held service in the chapel here on Tuesday morning. He read from the tenth chapter of Mark, 14th verse. "Suffer little children to come unto me". Our girls came to play and sing. Rev. Denny is leaving us. May God's blessing go with him and his family in their new charge.

Tuesday night was music night here. Fred Ballard came to play for us, giving us all his best. We thank you, Fred, for coming to entertain us for a little while. You always do it cheerfully, with the cutest little smile.

The ladies in the craft room on Wednesday afternoon - stitching, sewing, knitting and humming little tunes. Especially Millie Wood, whose hands are seldom still, always knitting mitts, or socks, for Mark or Wayne or Bill. Wednesday night is games night in the auditorium, where we spend a social time and have a lot of fun.

Thursday morning once again is fun and fitness, where we have a lot of ladies, but not too many men. The A.C.W. ladies from West Guilford put on the tea party in the afternoon. They gave us a lovely lunch, and gave us a birthday cake for those who had birthdays in December and January. This was an afternoon we should all remember. In the evening our Kinsmen showed up for a good hour of bingo.

Friday is sing-song time here at Hyland Crest. Mrs. Barron came to play and Mrs. Coburn sing for us. For this we are surely blessed. It was hair-do time - our stylist couldn't wash our ladies' hair, because she had no water yet. So they rushed home to have it washed, and back to have it set. The second group of ladies, hearing the first one's plight, said "We'll take the water with us, and have our hair done right." So they filled up cans and jars - whatever they could get - had their hair all washed and dried, then really nicely set.

You know where there is a will, there is a way.

Saturday afternoon, with Muppets on a float ahead of us named Bert and Ernie, we boarded the bus and started our journey down through Minden town to the parking lot, to join the Carnival parade. While we were waiting the band came and played. Our float took third prize. We were surprised to see such a large crowd. The Peterborough Canadian Knights, and the Oshawa Cadet Band came to the auditorium, and played some lively tunes, making a happy ending to a busy afternoon.

Until next week.

Carnival winners

It was a weekend of mad activity in sub-zero weather at the Kinsmen's Winter Carnival here in Minden. Racing was a big feature at the fairgrounds both Saturday and Sunday. Ice racers from clubs all over the province competed on the track while snowmobilers held drag races over an eighth mile track next door.

Even the kids got into the act; 175 of them took to their trikes for Saturday's tricycle races, and every one of them won. They all received toques, balloons and Kinsmen Carnival pins for their bravery.

Meanwhile an enthusiastic crowd was growing more so, keeping warm with liquid refreshments in the Crowe's Nest and watching some imposing biceps compete in the arm wrestling competition. Not all the events had as many winners as the trike race, however: the following is a list of those who came out on top in the weekend's contests:

Chicken eating

Randy Sawyer topped the field of twenty ravenous entrants.

Log sawing

Two teams tied for first place, with matching times for 25 seconds; Mitchell Stephen and Burt Short tied a pair of unnamed woodsmen in brown sweaters and green hats.

Tug-of-war

The winning team of six included: Alf Kimble; Harry Forbes; Les Burk; Jim McKelvey; John McKelvey and Kevin Hamilton.

Pole climb

No one knows quite how they did it, but the winning team of Les Burk, John McKelvey and Jim McKelvey got to the top to ring the bell in a winning time of two seconds. Steve Crowe, Larry Anderson and Dennis Stribling were second with a time of 13 seconds.

Parade

Best float award in the commercial class went to Hope Satellite. Second was CM Construction and third, Easton's Red and White. In Four charged in theft

Four Wilberforce men are facing over 30 charges by police following a series of breakins and the theft of a car Friday night.

The four and a 16 year old youth from Brampton were arrested by Oak Ridges OPP early Saturday morning north of Toronto after a car was taken from the Keswick area. They have also been charged with stealing liquor valued at $269 from the Wilberforce Legion before the joy ride began, and breaking into several parked cars at Harcourt Park. Oak Ridges OPP recovered the stolen alcohol and the property missing from the Harcourt Park vehicles in the car the youths were driving at the time of their arrest.

The four Wilberforce men charged are Murry Woodcox, 20; Terry Darou, 19; Stephen Elliott, 18; and Robert Scott, also 18. The Brampton youth involved was Barry Gillis. Minden constables Bill Clendenning and Jim Martin investigated the incident.

Driver charged

An Eagle Lake man has been charged with failing to yield right-of-way after a two car collision caused $3,500 worth of damage Monday, January 25. James Ridgewill, 45, was entering highway 121 from Robertson Road when his pick up truck struck a car being driven by Florence Walker of Snowdon Township.

PC Bob Wood was the investigating officer.

Cold ride

Two women fishing on Kushog Lake Monday were given quite a shock by a passing snowmobiler, but it wasn't half as severe as the shock he was feeling.

Constable Wim Magee was investigating a report of damage to three fish huts on the lake when the two women informed him they had seen a naked man tear across the lake on a snowmobile before Magee's arrival. Acting on a hunch, Magee followed the snowmobile tracks to a nearby cottage where he found six youths in a state of revelry.

When questioned, one of the youths took responsibility for the snowmobile stunt, but insisted he had underwear on at the time. Another of the youths, Kevin Berry, 17, of Stouffville, was charged with damaging the fish huts. The damage was estimated at $50.

Debby, wife of Islander Hockey player, Denis Potvin, gives this unusual French dish which is traditionally served after Midnight mass and throughout the Christmas season.

1/2 lb. pork, 1/4 lb. beef, 1/4 lb. veal, all lean and minced. Enough pastry to make an 8" pie, 1 small onion chopped, 1 clove garlic chopped, 1/2 tsp. savory, 1/4 tsp. celery pepper, 1/4 tsp. cloves, 1/2 cup water. Combine in heavy pot and bring to a boil. Cook uncovered (20 min. or so until pink has left meat). Mixture should be damp not watery. Cool mixture and place in uncooked pie shell. Cover with pastry (pricked). Bake at 500 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce oven to 350 and bake until crust is golden brown. Wrap in foil and freeze. Reheat at 350 F. for 45 minutes. Last 20 minutes replace foil so as not to dry the pie. Serve with tomato sauce, lovely with broiled tomatoes.

Hi! Hope everyone enjoyed the Winter Carnival. Ron Gambell our Reeve and Warden had the pleasure of opening the festivities.

Of course Sunday afternoon had to turn miserable. This is the fourth weekend in a row and it is supposed to be the worst in 15 years, or so they say.

Never mind. Spring is just around the corner. What corner? Haven't found it yet.

Mrs. Lil Porter had her grandson, John Porter visit her over the weekend.

Gary Stephenson won first prize for the Kung-Fu float. Congratulations!

Sorry to hear that Mrs. Bedlington isn't feeling too well.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wunker entertained Ken and Jeanne Bowron for supper last week.

Visiting with the Dunsford's this weekend were Gary, Sandy, Scott, and Lindsay Wilson, Pam, Rick and Jocelyn Dunsford and the Tom Steads, Senior and Junior.

Michellene Cruickshank, Claire Kelling, and Brenda Mahoney were up visiting in the area over the weekend from Shelburne area.

All Junior Horticulturists,

we are having our sleigh ride at the Sisson Farm this Friday, February 5 at 7 o'clock. Please be at the library between 6:30 and quarter to seven for a ride there.

Also the Horticulture Pot Luck Supper is February 9, bring your own pot and dishes and silverware. The pot can be anything like a casserole or salad or a dessert. Bring a small table centre on a Valentine theme. Do come, you will enjoy yourself. See you there?

All Juniors are invited as well. Bring your parents.

The Wrights attended a wedding in Milton on the weekend.

Hint of the Week

If a necklace is knotted, put a drop or two of salad oil on a piece of waxed paper, lay the knot in the oil and undo it by using two straight pins. It should unknot easily.
